For me the earth is the only appropriate heaven to live and share with other biological being that shares the vital element of my being that constitute the term called “Life”. Every creature that dwell in this planet “Earth” assumes to take part in the preservation and multiplication of its being so the earth depends on every creature that dwell in this planet. According to the phenomenon of science, the earth evolved by occurrence which they called big bang theory which happened million years ago. I know science never speaks without basis but it seeks to know the important details, then they formulate a factual conclusion.

The earth is the only place where we can thrive. Its fertile soil is so conducive for life. But sometimes life contributes to the destruction of mother earth. The earth is so vulnerable to any form of destruction that man inflicts on. In effect natural calamities are rampant.

I believe that we should unite our minds and hearts not just as a county but as a world to preserve mother earth effectively. If we are successful, we can bring back the earth to its natural stare and condition. As a result, we will enjoy the bounty of life with the rest of the creatures in this world.
