

Saving our Earth

Sitti Rahma W. Asa

Bachelor of Science in Nursing

School of Allied and Medicine

Universidad de Zamboanga

Global warming is one of the major problems that we are experiencing nowadays that result to many great disasters in different countries. The change of weather is one cause of global warming. In fact, the coming of strong typhoons that will attempt to bring great floods to any part of the world are a threat to anyone. Indeed, humans are the one's putting their lives in danger for violating the existence of nature. However, we humans do suffer the consequences of global warming because of being stubborn and insensitive to our mother earth not thinking that the destruction to nature will bring everyone's life in danger.