Today, there is no such thing as peace in this world. Everywhere you go you will see different angles of noises that are ruining the world. It is misinterpretation, misunderstanding, cruelty, envy that result to war. As a result, killings are found, heard, and written everywhere.

In order to live in peace, we should practice loving ourselves and keeping ourselves away from crimes and any harmful doings. We should also learn to take care of our nature since it is the place where we live. Thus, we need to live harmoniously and completely to be able to breathe fresh air, drink clean water, swim in clear water, and live in a clean and healthy environment for us to live happily and at peace.
