World Peace
Rufaina Hassan
Bachelor of Science in Nursing
School of Allied and Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga

Is world peace possible? I strongly believe that wars and conflicts are inevitable in today's world. The fact that countries tend to race towards supremacy and dominance, places the vision of world peace miles and miles away from the Philippines. Today, there is lack of unity and just government. The powerful government usually misuses their power and cause global unrest and injustice.

World peace can be put back together, and all it needs is a helping hand. It only takes one person to end the hate and the uncivil greed. The word peace cannot be written down on a piece of paper, but it can be seen through man's healthy action. No matter what the flag you pledge under or salute, we are all the same.

In the Philippines, we need to have an organized and powerful team to stop all kinds of criminality. The world is on the right foot to be working towards a nonviolent environment and trying to end those difficult situations so we can have the chance to improve our surroundings. by following the steps of Gandhi, we will achieve equal rights and we will cease such segregation.