These two words are commonly debated among today's society. But will it be attained? When? Is it possible? We are not ignorant of what is going on in our world. Killings, violence, crime are everywhere. Even within a small society, crime exists. The root cause of all this is power. Because of this, we can never attain peace.

For millennium mankind has dreamed of peace. As our global community continues to evolve, technology closes the geographic gap between cultures and thus, finds ourselves more and more occupied with the idea of peace. Racial and religious tension is still persistent and the vast separation between the rich and the poor remains an isolating factor in every part of the world. That is why we cannot live in a world of peace. Maybe if we learn to respect each other, recognize one's rights, all of us can attain peace. We must know how to work with each other, how to treat each other righteously and us to attain peace then everyone is free and happy.
