It's really frustrating to hear about the heartless evil people like them do exist for real. I can't imagine how they can sleep at night with what they did. For all we know they have been doing such kind of killings for a really long time, and have just been able to get away with it. What's even more frustrating is we keep on hearing about all this all day, every day and everywhere, and yet no necessary action is being done. Details, facts are already out in the open, but still those people are still out there. Let us all pray that justice will be served as soon as possible and such cruelty will never happen again. If I have to join a rally to make sure the guilty parties suffer, I will! It's high time these people know that rubbing elbows with a corrupt/cheating president doesn't make them invincible.
