

HUMAN RIGHTS ON EMPLOYEE

SUNSHINE D. MARIBAO

Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Along with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Charter of the United Nations and the two international covenants on human rights in 1966 remain the most important contemporary instruments for the international protection of human rights.

Everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration, without distinction of any kind, such as race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status."

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples

And speaking of that one of the human rights of an employee is the right to receive their benefits to the company where they work. And when the company didn't give the benefits that an employee supposed to receive they have the right to complain. And when the company ignore the employees complain about the problem an employee have the right to file a case against the company. Because an employee have the right to do that.