

HEALTH
REFLECTION ON HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATION

JENNIE FLOR L. MAPAS
College of Business Management
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

As a concerned citizen of our Government, I can feel that in our community there are still violations affecting Human Rights, like for example the Health of the people. Not everyone has been given the chance to have a good life with a better health: there is an unequal or misdistribution of rights to people especially to the poor and to those who are below poverty line.

Poor citizen of our country are the one who need the services more than anyone else. Here in fact, it is not fairly treated that who only have the money shall only acquire the benefits. It is a form of violation of Human Rights, for everyone should have the same benefits as well. There are also problems like the high prices of medicines and lack of doctors in poor regions of our country, the cost of some medical operations are too high that those poor ones cannot afford.

From these mistakes of our Government, I can say that they don't take action of it right away; they consider first those who are powerful and have great influence. They should be considerate that not all people have the capability to overcome poverty, and some reasons are because of financial problems. Another fact is that our surroundings which are prone to sickness. Pollution also can be a great factor of harming our Health, pollutions coming from different factories and vehicles.

Our Government and Health officials should take responsibility due to this fact, so that, we can prevent the large population that have poor health. Another thing is that the lack of healthy food and fresh fruits to eat, only those who have the budget can afford to buy the necessity and it is not fair knowing that fact, for those who cannot eat well.

One thing is that, even those who are high ranking officials are the ones who deprive Human Rights, like selling the medicine in high prices, not giving free check-ups and many more.