Many have struggled to attain world peace and many have done different things that would help the community to gain world peace. In some country or city world peace is somehow felt, because the people are practicing and some are still struggling to have it. For the world to have peace, each and every country must have it, not just only one place but all. Because how can there World Peace if not all the pieces of the globe doesn't have it? If not all the people are practicing it? If not all the people wanted it? If you really determined to have that certain thing, you would do anything for that, scarification is one thing that others do, which is I think inappropriate, because the only thing I know that would greatly help the world to have is that every single person in the earth should help each other, meaning no one should be left behind.

In my dreams World Peace is not that hard to have, and it's not that hard to do. But it's just a mere dream; we all have to face reality, reality that mother earth is suffering. Now how can there be world peace, and how can we do things if the world were living is slowly dying because some people keeps on doing illegal things.
