Most of the world's great religions preach the wickedness of war and hold forth the vision of peace and harmony among people. Peace is something like the absence of war. I can tell that peace may be the absence of war, because if there is no war they might have peace. But not all things that if there are no wars there is peace, because we can call it Peace if we know how to understand and if we have freedom with ourselves, to other people, to our environment and to our God. Harmony among people can be starting a new peace, because you can relate yourself with them.

World Peace is something like understanding and respecting the cultures/ traditions of each country or for each tribe. We can say if the world has already Peace if they are helping each other on how to improve the country and they are sharing their ideas on how to manage/ to improve each company. For me, World Peace starts on us because we can have this if we know how to love ourselves, other people and esp. or environment/ society. Love is the only key to have the real Peace, because only love can tell us if our world starts the Peace.
