Peace and Development

Peace is hard to conquer to be able to have it, first we must have a good attitude, we must understand each other, we must have unity, we must create good companionship, and we must be able to mingle with other people. We must not criticize and discriminate to maintain peace we must balance to be fair to everyone. On the other hand development it takes time and effort to develop something like peace.

Nowadays here in our country it is difficult to have peace, it is really hard for the government to control peace & development. Some of the members of the government are corrupt in the situation from our government. We can't create peace because of their activity corrupting. Another we can't have our stable economy because foreigners are afraid to invest because of the terrorism here in our country. That's why can't improve the development in our country.
