I chose peace and development since our country needs development regarding the economy of our country. Peace and development always goes hand in hand because we can't achieve development if we don't have peace. We must start peace in ourselves. Learn to discipline ourselves and develop our moral, characteristics, self-esteem and self confidence. As a student, I can start to have peace and development by building an organization that shall promote and develop our environment. Peace and development are the two things that are important and needed in our country.

Peace is the state of freedom from war. Development is the act of developing or bringing to a completed state. Peace is all we need in our country, without peace our country will always have crime, people always quarreling, and people will not understand each other. Therefore, the country will not grow and will be miserable. We need to have peace in our country in order for us to develop. It's nice to have peace in our country people will always smile, people will understand each other. With peace, the country will easily develop; can also be the role model to others to develop their country. Giving respect to each other is we need to develop because if you respect others, others will also respect you.

Peace describes a society or a relationship that is operating harmoniously and without violent conflict while development means change.

Peace and development is the foundation of unity and solidarity of a nation which can be the starting point to success and transformation of a community.

Development is needed in a community/place so that the people who live will not suffer and have a change in their daily lives. It can be also a gift and considered a treasure to the future generation that will guide them to build a better nation to live with.

Peace and development not only in a community should be attained. In today's generation, it's really hard to find peace in the community. But in order for us to share the peace and development it should always start within ourselves. We can't share it or spread it if we don't know how. Even though it's hard to promote peace, you should also be very patient because there are no such people who don't want peace. And for their information, if they have peace in the community, it might build a good bonding among the neighborhood.

First of all what is peace and development? Simply means of peace an absence of war. Probably it's right but for some that definition alone is not enough a deeper explanation of such is needed. Peace is start from one of us and only things that connect us. No matter what race, religion or nationality we are we still accept and understand them but before attaining that, we have to begin peace with each one of us.

If there is peace there is also development because development starts from peace. Development means to grow or evolve to a more complete, complex or desirable state so we can say that particular country is developing if it has a law, justice, freedom, love, equality and peace.

We can make our country peace and develop for just simple things. Like respect others, unity, cooperation, helping one another, understand them or just saying a simple word "sorry". Love your country, proud of what you are.

If we have all of this there will be a better future for our country and there will be no people suffering and we cannot experience scarcity.
