Environment

Environment is where we be. It is our surroundings. The place where we interact with others and where we grow as a person. It is also in this environment or in this world that we came to be, where our parents nurtured and cared for us. And also this is where we shape our personality. Where we live our life. The environment keeps on providing us what we need with its resources. It is where we get our food, shelter, comfort and so much more. So we ought to return its kindness.

We should be aware of our environment's current status. We may not know it or feel it, but it's a fact that we our experiencing changes such as, flooding, landslides, etc. Also we in this world are feeling the heat, global warming is indeed happening. We should not just take it for granted. Let us not worsen it but instead let's do something for it. We must not pollute our environment. We should not waste and abuse our resources for it is limited. Let us be responsible and wise enough. Caring for the environment is worth it. We won't just be doing it for ourselves but for other people too, in the present and in the future generations to come. We should not do the things that will be the destruction of our environment.

In the present, as an individual, a group, a community or as a whole, why won't we work for the preservation of everything that we got. Let us care for our forests life, the wild life, or simply the world and everything in it. For it is a gift. We must preserve it and not ruin it. We should appreciate the world for it is amazing let us not take it for granted. Lastly, let us also bear in our minds that "we only got one world".
