Peace is something that is missing in our world. We didn't notice that we are introvert, selfish and greedy in the end. We suffer, because of our own doings. Peace should start with one self. It is not worth a damn to live in war. We are here stepping in the ground for our vital reason, and that is finding the missing puzzle of our life.

What is connection to the so called "World Peace". We cannot achieve that without having a one peace. We have individual differences that result to tragedy, killing one another for a nonsense reason. If we want to live in peace, there is so many ways to achieve it. But we are blind to see it, and world peace starts with one.
