Is peace attainable? Can a peaceful world be achieved? Nobody in their right mind would chose war over peace, death over life, misery over happiness, violence over peacefulness, and discord over harmony. Then why is there still war going on? History tells us, that there were wars, from the time of Adam, until now, even if the tools and methods used are different, the consequences are still the same, and nothing beneficial can be gain from it. People fight for power, religion, racialism, dignity and other worldly desires. It's true that the world now has been developed and will continue to develop. Technologies are everywhere, machineries and gadgets are invented, and people already step on the moon. However, with the modern technology of today, weapons and nuclear are also invented accordingly, and with the existence of these high-tech weapons, more deaths occurs.

Recently, the war between Palestine and Israel open the eyes of many people. Some of them offer help and donation to the victim, while others offer an army? Why is it an army not a consuler? Peace can't be achieved by word and dream alone, understandings, efforts and unity among all the people from all nations are needed, and no one gets left behind. Let us be as one and act as one.

The last question is, when can there be a peaceful world? No one knows for sure. But let us keep dreaming and strive for a better life, where there is no war, no discrimination, no violence, no sufferings and no despair. May peace be with us all?
