Peace is the harmony we find within ourselves, others, and in our community. But in a place like Iraq the word peace have been never attained by the people living there. Iraq has been a land of blood shedding of l the innocent ones, a land that in later be filled with cold bodies, a dry soil that had been water by tears and sorrow and especially suffering. Bombing now and then is everywhere had scared the people and closes their heart for happiness and freedom. Children can't play anywhere because of the threat of terrorism in their place. Every move are being counted by them because they wouldn't know when and where would the next bombing occur. The noise of bombing every now and then, the death of many innocent one, the flow of blood are the images that the people of Iraq witnesses. The place where peace doesn't exist.

Are we selfish enough? We have attain our peace could it possible that we help others attain their freedom and happiness. We should help in dedicating, helping, and lifting a place that filled with sorrow and suffering. Give them up the freedom we experience,. We should be fair that both of us experience the happiness, freedom, and harmony that we both should have. So in the end we can see not just a glance of happiness but the everlasting happiness to one self.
