

CONCERN IN THE ENVIRONMENT

Joel J. Salim

School of Allied Medicine
Universidad de Zamboanga
Zamboanga City, Philippines

Being concern in our environment is like being concern in our self and being concern for the others, environment is a gift for us from the god who created us and created this entire world and universe.

We should not take this gift for granted we must also be concern in the environment because as you notice our environment is not like as before it has been changed due to the effect of climate change and by our irresponsibleness our environment is slowly giving up. Landslide, flood, and mudslide are the biggest cause of our selfishness that has taken many lives of the people. One example of this happened when the tragedy of Ondoy one of the strongest storms in the Philippines takes the lives of hundreds of innocent people some part of Luzon. We should not wait for this tragedy to happen again we must take the opportunity and responsibility for our environment because for all this time our environment takes responsibility in our daily life and we should pay it back by being concern for it and take good care for it for the betterment of the future.